When animals return to your farm, or new animals come onto your farm, be sure to isolate them from other livestock for 14 days.

If they show signs of illness, call your veterinarian - always handle and treat ill or isolated animals after you handle healthy animals.

Be sure to wash your hands after handling livestock at the fair and before you handle livestock on your own farm.

Clean and disinfect shoes after leaving the fair and prior to wearing them on your home farm.

By following these four simple tips, you can reduce transmission of germs to your home farm and keep your livestock healthy!
