About School Climate

"School Climate" refers to how it "feels" to be a student or staff member in the school.

"Schools with positive climates are places where people care, respect and trust one another; and where the school, as an institution, cares for, respects, and trusts people. In such a school, people feel a high sense of pride and ownership that comes from each individual having a role in making the school a better place."

Eugene Howard

Everyone has a number of basic human needs. These are needs that we are biologically hard-wired to fulfill. The more effectively a school can provide a climate that will help its students meet those needs in a positive way, the more it can help its students be successful, both academically and in their lives. The questions in this survey are grouped according to the basic need areas identified by Karen Pittman (Executive Director of the Forum for Youth Investment) in her research on positive youth development.

This survey gives you an opportunity to express your opinions about some aspects of the "climate" in your school. This survey includes a number of statements that will provide valuable information for future planning. Your responses are confidential. The results of this survey will be compiled into group responses, with no way to identify an individual's responses. The surveys are numbered to help us with data tracking. No connection will be made or attempted between your responses and your identity. We will protect your confidentiality.

Instructions for Completing this Survey

Please read each statement and think about which response you feel best describes the way things are in your school. If the behavior described in the statement rarely if ever happens that way, circle number "1" for "Not Typical." If it happens that way most of the time, circle number "5" for "Very Typical."

Safety and Structure: Youth need to have a sense of personal safety and protection—both physically and emotionally.

1. The overall school atmosphere feels:
   a) Safe
   b) Caring

2. When school staff have a conflict or behavioral problem with a student, they are:
   a) Calm
   b) Respectful

3. Students resolve their disputes:
   a) Respectfully
   b) Peacefully

4. School staff use discipline strategies that promote positive change when there is a behavior problem with a student.

5. The present discipline system seems fair (not too harsh or too lenient).

6. Standards for student behavior are clearly communicated to:
   a) Students
   b) Parents
   c) Staff

7. When the disciplinary code is violated, consequences are enforced consistently for all students.

8. School staff members help students take responsibility for their behavior.

9. Adults help make sure that students don’t get bullied or harassed.

10. Students having problems in the following areas are quickly given support services:
    a) Academic problems
    b) Emotional or behavioral problems (for example, chemical use, aggression, depression, stress)
Belonging and Group Membership: Youth need to feel they are valued members of a group; they have a sense of belonging in the school.

Closeness and Good Relationships: Youth need to experience closeness to other people—relationships that are based upon respect, caring, honesty, and trust.

21. All students are treated with respect by:
   a) Peers
   b) Staff

22. School staff encourage respect for diversity of all kinds.

23. Students and staff spend time together outside of academic time in the classrooms (for example, informal activities or conversations, extra-curricular activities).

24. Students and staff enjoy each other’s company.

25. Every student has at least one adult in school with whom he/she has a “special connection”—a person that student would feel comfortable talking to about problems or asking for help.

Competency and Mastery: Youth need to develop attitudes, behaviors, and skills in a number of core areas in order to be successful as adults (including social and coping skills as well as academic abilities).

26. Students are taught and encouraged to use effective social, conflict resolution, and coping skills including:
   a) Respecting diversity (race, culture, gender, sexual orientation, religion, special needs)
   b) Behaving according to a core set of ethics (character education)
   c) Managing anger
   d) Communicating effectively
   e) Managing stress
   f) Solving personal problems
   g) Resolving conflicts with others

27. Because teachers know that students learn in different ways, they use lots of different strategies (including active student participation) when they teach that help make learning interesting and fun.

28. Teachers and administrators show that they have high expectations that all students can be successful learners by the way they talk and act with students.
29. When students are having trouble with a subject, staff are quick to find a way to help them (for example, spending extra time with them, arranging for tutoring, etc.).
